It is planned to hold the monthly institutes the last Saturday of each month when speakers will talk on the various subjects taught in the city schools. One speaker will talk on a special subject at each meeting and the instructors will have group discussions on the subjects they teach.

Meetings of the teachers of the city schools will be held separately from those for the country teachers, which are in charge of County Supt. Longfield.

FALSE PRETENSE CANNOT RELATE TO FUTURE ACT

Judge Funk Dismisses Case Against Man Who Stops Payment on Check—Ct. Suit Necessary.

According to the rule set down in such cases, false pretense must relate to existing fact or past event in order to constitute a crime in the eyes of the law. Such was the ruling of Judge Funk Monday morning in the case of the state against C. P. Hunt. The case against the defendant, charged with refunding James P. Woodworth out of $21, was dismissed. It was alleged that, following his removal from Lafayette to this city last spring, Hunt had secured his household goods from the freight house by giving the transfer man a check to cover the cost of packing at Lafayette which was done by one Joe Ardapple. Later, it is said, Hunt stopped payment on the check, which was for $21, so that he now has his household goods without having paid the cost of packing.

VILNA TAKEN, RUSS FORCE IS TRAPPED

and the general staff may choose either one.

1—A campaign to take Petrograd.

2—The establishing of a German front of the Dvina (Duna) river for the winter.

Advance Continues.

Although the Russian forces of Gen. Ivanoff have received fresh supplies of ammunition and the reformer ranks are delivering furious counter attacks from strongly prepared positions, the German forces are advancing successfully. North and south of Molodeschno, particularly in the region west of Vileiki, the fighting is of the most sanguinary character, with the Russians suffering enormous losses. The Russians are trying to place the German lines, but all their efforts have been failures.

Vilna's strategic importance was first recognized by Napoleon on his invasion of Russia. The city has 175,000 inhabitants and lies upon the great Warsaw-Petrograd railway. For many weeks it has been the object of a terrific offensive drive by the Germans. Field Marshal von Hindenburg personally directing the operations.

Railway lines from Kovno, to the northwest and Kovno to the south, also enter the city. Vilna has been the headquarters of the government of Lithuania and was strongly fortified, although it was not considered a fortress in the military sense. It is one of the "keys" to Petrograd.

CLIMB ROOFS DURING RAID TO GET VIEW

against a black bulk in the sky, about a mile above the city.

"A zeppelin! a zeppelin!" was the cry on every side.

Immediately there was another muffled explosion and then the anti-aircraft guns and the machine guns mounted in the parks and upon the roofs of the buildings let loose.

The sharp crackle of the machine guns and the high range cannon roar, but clear and near against the heavier roar of the bursting bombs.

"Over toward London Wall a sheet of flame broke forth, showing in vivid contrast with the darkened city. Above the line of the flames volumes of smoke could be seen rolling upward.

"In the neighborhood of Piccadilly Circus, where all the lights, even those in the theaters, had been put out, the rumble and jar of explosions sounded.

A Great Spectacle.

"It was a spectacle such as the human eye had never seen before. The first traces of terror soon gave way to curiosity and many persons stood out in the streets, exposed to the danger, fascinated by the sight.

"At the first alarm the manager of a moving picture theater in Tottenham Court road, warned all the patrons to take refuge in the cellar, but instead most of them flocked into the streets where they stood enthralled by the scene.

"In Wood st. a bus filled with 16 persons, was struck by a bomb and blown to bits. I believe all were killed or mortally maimed.

"Around Trafalgar square a silent throng stood in the streets watching the display of fireworks, unmindful of the dangers to which they were exposed.

"It was certainly a wonderful display such as London had never seen. 'Hell's fireworks' describes it best of all.

"Most of the bombs, dropped during the half hour that the zeppelin hovered over the city burst while they were from 100 to 200 feet above the roof tops. Jets of green and red fire spurted in every direction while fragments of steel rained upon the adjacent territory.

Guns Are Useless.

"Where are the aeroplane patrols?" everyone was asking, but no aeroplanes came into view to give battle to the airship. Only the high angle guns were in action and these were useless, just as they proved useless in all the other German raids.

"Despite its great distance in the air the zeppelin was in plain view in the glare from the searchlights and in the lurid glare of the bursting rockets which the high angle guns fired against it. In the purple light of the searchlight, puffs of white smoke, which at time almost hid the intruder from view, could be seen. There were no lights on the zeppelin and apparently all its fixture had been painted black to make it as invisible as possible against the sky.

"Many incendiary bombs fell along London wall. The buildings that number 1 and number 3 were shattered and set on fire. Altogether three fires were started.

"It was afterwards said that three zeppelins took part but I saw only one.

"I afterwards learned that many bombs fell around the Woolwich arsenal, a great arms making plant on the outskirts of the city, but they failed to do any damage. It had doubtless for its double object the destruction of the arsenal and the striking of terror into London. In the first it failed, but in the second it partly succeeded.

No One Feels Safe.

"No Londoner feels safe when he goes to bed at night. No one knows but that during the night a zeppelin may be loosing bombs above his house top. London and the east coast are being aroused to fear.

"In the raid on the night of Sept. 8 the casualties were 106 of whom 50 were killed. This shows the deadly power of the zeppelins and it is no wonder the people are becoming afraid.

"When the zeppelin decided to draw off after shelling London's heart it did not leave in a direct easterly direction, but ascended until it was lost in the night clouds and then steered away."

The details of the London air raid brought here today on the Rotterdam were the first to be received, as they have been held up by the British censor. They show that the situation in London and on the east coast, as a result of the continued air activities of the Germans, is much more dangerous than was supposed. The British censor has allowed only meager information relatives to zeppelin attacks to leak out.

A woman passenger on the Rotterdam said it was reported in London that one zeppelin bomb had struck a hospital for crippled children in London, but Mrs. Kahn and other passengers had not heard of this.

Resinol Soap clears bad complexions

If you want a clear, fresh, glowing complexion, use Resinol Soap at least once a day. Work a warm, creamy lather of it well into the pores, then rinse the face with plenty of cold water.

It does not take many days of such regular care with Resinol Soap to show an improvement, because the Resinol medication soothes and refreshes the skin, while the pure soap, free of alkali, is cleansing it.

When the skin is in a very neglected condition, with pimples, blackheads, redness or roughness, spread on just a little Resinol Ointment for ten or fifteen minutes before using Resinol Soap.

Resinol Soap is not artificially colored, its rich brown being entirely due to the Resinol medication it contains. Twenty-five cents at all druggists and dealers in toilet goods. For a trial size cake, write to Dept. 4-P, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.
